

Q3 Medical Devices Leads the Way for Irish Companies Seeking to List on Hong Kong Exchange

Dublin, Ireland - Q3 Medical Devices Limited (“Q3 Medical”) based in Dublin, Ireland announced that the Hong Kong Stock Exchange (the “Exchange”) has approved Ireland as an acceptable jurisdiction for the purpose of Irish companies seeking to list on the Exchange. This landmark approval follows Q3 Medical’s application for Ireland to be approved as an acceptable jurisdiction. The decision by the Exchange was made on 19 December 2019 and it followed a period of discussions between Q3 Medical, Q3 Medical’s legal and financial advisors, the Exchange and a number of regulatory authorities. The approval means that Q3 Medical can now proceed with its planned initial public offering on the Exchange and hopefully achieve another historic milestone by becoming the first Irish company listed on the Exchange. In January 2020, the Exchange published its Country Guide for Ireland and it is available for review at: https://www.hkex.com.hk/-/media/HKEX-Market/Listing/Rules-and-Guidance/Other-Resources/Listing-of-Overseas-Companies/A-List-of-Acceptable-Overseas-Jurisdictions/cg_ireland.pdf?la=en.

Eric Mangiardi, President & CEO of Q3 Medical, commented on the approval, saying “We are extremely pleased with the Hong Kong Stock Exchange’s approval of Ireland as an acceptable overseas jurisdiction for the purpose of Irish companies seeking to list on the Exchange. This represents a significant opportunity for Q3 Medical and other Irish companies to pursue financing opportunities through a public listing in Hong Kong”.
